

INDEX

TO

VOLUME LVII.

- Acts and Epistles of St. Paul, Malleson's, 483.
- 'Affghan War,' Hensman's, 539.
- 'African Explorers and African Organisers,' 104; Gordon's work in China, 105; his opinion of the Egyptians, 107; power of his faith, 109; his humour, 111; the African organiser, 113; Mr. Thomson's presence of mind, 115; failure of the Belgians, 117; quaint titles of Major Pinto's book, 119; need of combined work, 121.
- 'Americanisms,' 392; authorities,
393; faults of Dr. De Vere's book,
395; heterogeneous elements, 397;
Indian, Dutch, and French, 399;
Spanish and German, 401; the Western States, 403; new meaning of old words, 405; politics, 407;
trade and travel, 409; Older England, 411.
- 'Among the Sons of Ham,' Hughes's, 558.
- 'Annual Volumes and Illustrated
Books,' 560; Wurtz's atomic theory, 264.
- 'Arboriculture,' Grigor's, 274.
- 'Aspects of Poetry,' Shairp's, 524.
- 'At Home in Fiji,' Cumming's, 259.
- 'Anthropology,' Taylor's, 530.
- 'Ballads and Sonnets,' Rossetti's, 520.
- 'Beginnings of the Christian Church,' Simcox's, 493.
- 'Bible and Science,' Brunton's, 505.
- 'Books and Book-hunting,' 122; the fortunes of books, 123; the destruction of ancient libraries, 125; the world of books, 127; books about books, 129; the history of libraries, 131; the faculty of repetition, 133;
modern progress, 135; a vast field, 137; the division of labour, 139;
the spirit of the age, 141; private libraries, 143; bibliomania, 145;
the organisation of literature, 147;
the use of catalogues, 149; the reading habit, 151; incitements, 153.
- 'British Association Jubilee, The,' 412; origin of the Association, 413;
the first meeting, 415; its constitution, 417; early meetings, 419;
the annual reports, 421; arrangements for the Jubilee, 423; Sir John Lubbock's address, 425; the highest generalisations of science, 427; the scientific reason why, 429;
science and religion, 431; Sir W.
Thomson on the sources of energy, 433; Sir W. Armstrong on forms of energy, 435; Professor Williamson on the atomic theory, 437; Professor Ramsay on geology, 439;
Professor Flower on anthropology,
441; ditto, 443.
- 'Chief End of Revelation,' Bruce's,
212.
- 'Christian's Plea against Modern Unbelief, The,' Redford's, 206.
- 'Christmas Evans,' Hood's, 519.

- 'Church Systems of England,' Rogers's 489.
- 'Daniel Defoe,' 345; Lives of, 347; birth and education, 349; occasional conformity, 351; "Essay upon Projects," 353; "The True-born Englishman," 355; "The Shortest Way with Dissenters," 357; "Hymn to the Pillory," 359; release from prison, 361; his political career, 363; the union with Scotland, 365; in the Jacobite camp, 367; his stories, 369.
- 'Denmark and Iceland,' Otté's, 556.
- 'Eastern and Western Christianity in the Fourth Century, 24; the conversion of Constantine, 25; differences between Eastern and Western Churches, 27; Paul of Samosata, 29; Antioch: its theology and its priests, 31; Alexandria, 33; the Alexandrian church, 35; Athanasius and Theophilus, 37; Cyril of Alexandria, 39; Chrysostom at Constantinople, 41; Western Christianity, 43; the Roman bishopric, 45; Ambrose of Milan, 47.
- 'Evenings with the Skeptics,' Owen's, 478.
- 'Faith of Islam,' Sell's, 237.
- 'Fashion in Deformity,' Flower's, 277.
- 'Father Curci,' 282; causes of his celebrity, 283; Italian unity and the temporal power, 285; early championship of the Jesuits, 287; the reactionary creed, 289; editorship of the "Civiltà Cattolica," 291; the "Civiltà" and the Vatican, 293; rupture with the Jesuits, 295; change of front, 297; the programme of 1875, 299; its publication in 1877, 301; separation from the company, 303; commentary on the New Testament, 305; merits of the translation, 307; the prefaces, 309; a new controversy, 311; criticism of Pius IX., 313; the old policy and the new, 315; a free church in a free state, 317; chances of success, 319; the blank wall or the abyss? 321.
- 'Fernley Lecture,' Macdonald's, 474.
- 'Fichte,' Adamson's, 543.
- Fiji, 323; books on Fiji, 325; a sub-merged continent, 327; coral reefs, 329; two great races, 331; mythology, 333; cannibalism, 335; missionary operations, 337; a native ministry, 339; a crown colony, 341; recent developments, 343.
- 'Foreign Countries and British Colonies,' 270.
- 'George Eliot,' 154; her appearance, 155; art or biographical detail, 157; genial tolerance of her earlier books, 159; earlier and later attitudes towards Christianity, 161; religious position, 163; grounds of her hope for the future, 165; antecedents as a criterion of right and wrong, 167; personal grandeur of her moral attitude, 169; conscientiousness of her art, 171; her poetry, 173; her art-world, 175.
- 'Gospel of St. John,' Govett's, 232.
- 'Group of Female Philanthropists,' 49; Mary Carpenter, 51; the closed apprenticeship, 53; the ragged school, 55; authorship, 57; India, 59; dying in harness, 61; Sister Dora, 63; entrance on her work, 65; hospital life, 67; characteristics, 69; lonely suffering, 71; Frances Havergal, 73; ministries of voice and pen, 75; work among the poor, 77; contrasts, 79; the imperishable work, 81.
- 'Guide to Political Economy,' Cossa's, 534.
- 'Hindoo at Home,' Bose's, 553.
- 'Homiletical Encyclopædia,' Bertram's, 241.
- 'Hours with the Mystics,' Vaughan's, 197.
- 'John Birchenall, Life of,' French's, 517.
- 'Kingdom of God, The, and the Kingdom of Darkness,' 514.
- 'Latest Development of Darwinism, The,' 371; true meaning of Darwinism, 373; surface covered by worms, 375; proofs of intelligence, 377; ditto, 379; old buildings buried by worms, 381; worm castings driven leeward, 383; rapidity of work, 385; worms' work suggests design, 387; contrast to Mr.

- Darwin's former works, 389; what Mr. Darwin leaves unsaid, 391.
- 'Lay Sermons,' Blackie's, 500.
- 'Le Public en Angleterre,' Beljame's, 546.
- 'Liturgy of the Celtic Church,' Warren's, 511.
- 'Madame de Rémusat's Letters,' 535.
- 'Memoirs of Thomas Carlyle,' Shepherd's, 256.
- 'Metaphysics of the Schools,' Harper's, 515.
- Methodism in 1881, 177; the obituary, 179; ordination, 181; the catechism, 183; the book of offices, 185; the "Fernley Lecture," 187; the new college, 189; home missions, 191; methods of reaching the masses, 193; semi-heathenism, 195.
- 'Methodism in Rossendale,' 519.
- 'Mind and Brain,' 82; the new method, 83; "the asylum of ignorance," 85; the nature of mind, 87; new definitions of matter, 89; laws exist only for mind, 91; new definitions of mental functions, 93; Maudsley's origin of the moral sense, 95; moral freedom, 97; Maudsley's Theology, 99; Dr. Fairbairn's criticism, 101; the all-sufficient light, 103.
- 'Mosaic Era,' Gibson's, 516.
- 'New Analogy,' Cellarius's, 503.
- 'Newfoundland to Manitoba,' Rae's, 272.
- 'Nineteenth Century,' Mackenzie's, 243.
- 'Occasional Notes on Shakespeare,' Ingleby's, 529.
- 'Ecumenical Conference, Report of,' 518.
- 'Old Testament History of Redemption,' Delitzsch's, 510.
- 'Pageant, A, and Other Poems,' Rossetti's, 250.
- 'Philippi on the Last Things,' 445; death and the destruction of sins, 447; the intermediate state, 449; unclothed and clothed upon, 451; the resurrection, 453; the glorification of nature, 455; the gradations in glory, 457; the Apocalypse, 459; Hades and Hell, 461; Antichrist, 463; the papacy, 465; the millennium, 467; modern Chiliasts, 469; the end, 471; conclusion, 473.
- 'Problem of Religious Progress,' Dorchester's, 508.
- 'Rabbi Jeshua,' 496.
- 'Report of Royal Colonial Institute,' Vol. XII., 279.
- 'Resurrection of our Lord,' Milligan's, 230.
- 'Revised Epistle to the Philippians, The,' 1; revised Bible-reading, 3; the Epistle possibly a circular letter, 5; revision of the first chapter, 7; restored ancient readings, 9; stricter rendering of the Greek article, 11; revision of Chapter IV., 13; difficulties of IV., 14, 15; interpretation of IV., 25; the apostle's call to arms, 19; grace with incorruption, 21; conclusion, 23.
- 'Science and Religion,' Calderwood's 235.
- 'Science and Religion,' Winchell's, 518.
- 'Sermons, Addresses, &c.,' Gregory's, 241.
- 'Songs of a Worker,' O'Shaughnessy's, 250.
- 'Theism and the A Priori Argument,' 226.
- 'Thirty-nine Articles,' Miller's, 234.
- 'Thoughts on Private Devotion,' Sheppard's, 517.
- 'Through the Ranks to a Commission,' 275.
- 'Times and Seasons of Sacred Prophecy,' Birks's, 219.
- 'Vital Truths,' Cooper's, 513.
- 'Volcanoes,' Judd's, 267.
- 'Whittington,' Besant and Rice's, 549.